MARKET REVIEW, OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

The Debt Management Office (DMO) conducted the Oct-2024 bond auction with an offer size of N180.00bn (20.00% higher than N150.0bn on offer at September's auction) across the reopened 2029 and 2031 bond papers. At the auction, investors' demand was strong as total subscription printed at N389.32bn, indicating an oversubscription rate of 2.16x. The bulk of the bids were skewed towards the longest tenor instrument, "2031", which received total bids of N328.58bn.

Notably, the DMO over-allotted the auction, selling a total of N289.60bn worth of bond papers. As a result of the increased offer and over-allotment, the marginal rates on the bond offerings: 2029s and 2031s climbed by 175bps a piece to settle at 20.75% and 21.74%, (previously 19.00% and 19.99%) respectively.

In the secondary market, the bears had the upper hand, helped by the illiquid position of the financial system for the better part of October. Consequently, average yields on sovereign bonds climbed by 72bps to print at 19.49% (previously 18.77%). In tandem, we observed sell-interest in corporate bonds as average yields at the end of Sept-2024 declined by 114bps m/m to close at 22.80% (previously 21.66%).

Similarly, the FGN Sukuk bonds closed bearish as average yields on Sukuk bonds inched by 39bps m/m to close at 19.69% compared to the previous month's close of 19.30%.

Looking ahead into November 2024, we expect bond yields to hover around current levels with possibility of closing lower (at primary market level), particularly influenced by stable supply at the primary market auction vis-à-vis the expected demand. Also, the expectations for another rate hike by MPC in November will look to keep bond yield around current levels in the secondary market.

PERFORMANCE REVIEW

The United Capital Sukuk Fund annualized return for the month of October 2024 is 9.67% while the annualized YTD return is 9.67% relative to the return of 19.92% posted by the benchmark for the same period.

The return can be attributed mainly to accrued coupons on bond holdings as well as accrued interest on money market instruments held in the fund during the period.

The month of October witnessed the FGN Sukuk bonds closed bearish as average yields on Sukuk bonds inched by 39bps m/m to close at 19.69% compared to the previous month's close of 19.30%. Also, the expectations for another rate hike by MPC in November will look to keep bond yield around current levels in the secondary market.

We expect more Sukuk issuances to take place in the coming months. We would continue to watch out for attractive sukuk offers to boost return.

The Fund maintains sufficient exposure to FGN Sukuk, money market instruments and sub-sovereign and corporate Sukuk with significantly higher yields. We will maintain current allocation to enhance returns for the Fund.
