

United Capital Wealth For Women Fund | Monthly Fact Sheet

September-23

FUND OBJECTIVE

The objective of the United Capital Wealth for Women Fund is to promote the financial inclusion of the female gender by increasing their access to financial investment products and addressing the current imbalance of most investment products being skewed towards the male gender.

The Fund Manager seeks to maintain a balance between realized income and capital growth to ensure regular distribution payments and continuous appreciation in asset values while ensuring optimal safety of assets and adequate liquidity to meet the Fund's obligations as they fall due. The Fund invests in money markets and equities. The equity portfolio is tilted towards companies with significant female representation on their boards and management teams.

MARKET REVIEW, OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

In September, the local equities market posted losses with bearish sentiments resurfacing. Despite significant gains in BUAFOODS (+15.6% m/m), STANBIC (+22.7% m/m) and AIRTELAF (+3.2% m/m), share price depreciations in large-cap stocks including BUACEMEN (-11.1% m/m), DANGCEM (-5.6% m/m) and MTN (-3.8% m/m) weighed on the bourse. Consequently, the benchmark All Share Index (NGX-ASI) declined by 25bps m/m to close at 66,382.14 points. As a result, YTD return weakened to 29.52%, while market capitalisation printed at N36.34tn.

The Central Bank of Nigeria (CBN) conducted three NT-bills auctions in the primary market in September. The CBN offered a total of N544.1bn worth of bills across the 91-day, 182-day and 364-day bills. The auction was met with strong investor demand owing to the buoyant liquidity in the system, with total subscriptions printing at N2.3tn, implying a bid-to-cover ratio of 4.2x. Notably, the Apex Bank sold just the amount offered at the auctions. As a result, the stop rates across the 91-day, 182-day and 364-day bills trended lower throughout the month, declining by 20bps, 145bps and 260bps to close the month at 4.99%, 6.55% and 11.37%, respectively (previously, 5.19%, 8.00% and 13.97%).

In the primary market, the Debt Management Office (DMO) conducted the September 2023 FGN bond auction with a total offer size of N360.0bn across the 2029s, 2033s, 2038s and 2053s papers. The auction was undersubscribed due to a combination of the financial system's illiquidity (at the time of the auction) and banks' recent apathy toward long-duration exposure (banks have remained reluctant to increase their exposure to loan risks, leading to CRR debits by the CBN, further contributing to the financial illiquidity situation).

Investor demand was N290.9 billion, or 0.8 times the amount offered. The DMO undersold the auction, which is what we anticipated. The non-competitive allocations comprised 20.0% (N65.0bn) of the overall allotments of N316.4bn, giving the FG an upper hand in determining the magnitude of the rate climb at the auction. The allocation of bonds to investors at competitive rates totalled N251.4 billion. Due to increased demand and better value for money at the time of the auction, marginal rates increased (underpinned by system illiquidity). Ultimately, rates on the 2029s, 2033s, 2038s and 2053s papers climbed by 65bps, 45bps, 35bps and 40bps to settle at 14.5%, 15.45%, 15.55% and 16.25% respectively.

This month, we foresee investors taking positions anticipating the Q3-2023 earnings season. Investors will continue cherry-picking activities around fundamentally sound stocks with a preference for companies with solid results in the first half of the year. In the fixed-income market, we anticipate that the FG's efforts to reduce its borrowing will be more apparent in the domestic debt market in October. Ultimately, we expect secondary market bond rates to remain at their current levels mostly. At the primary market, a combination of the anticipated auction calendar and investors' demand (supply and demand fundamentals) will determine the
